

Weymouth Sunday evening

Dear Deborah

All things arrived safe by Mr Kingsbury we liked the cloak's very much, and I want you to send the pattern of the cape, collar, and yoke, and how the edge of the cape is to be finished. I am going to get Sally Read to cut it and work on it as much as she can in one day, she cut Mary Tiffield's and I do not see but what it looks very well. I was surprised that we had so much money left. I shall keep sending it till it is all used up. I want you to get me a calico gown 1 shilling a yard 7 yards and get Emme and I each a pair of thick ~~shoe's~~ shoe's, and get me a pair of gloves near the colour of my cloak. I find it as convenient as Grace Armstrong in the Inheritance to have a Betty Duguid and I think my letter is much in the same style. Carolines letter was a most unsatisfactory one, she talked of "plots and pions, and interesting times," and took for granted that we knew all about it, whereas we are as ignorant as bears, to be on the safe side, go upon the supposition that we know nothing. The Liberator ~~was~~ some comfort it is the best one we have had for weeks I have read it ever since it came. Mrs Tiffield says she shall come to the Annual meeting as sure as her name is Tiffield, and you will see me there as sure as my name is Weston When are you coming out. write when you want to come and Hervey can come for you We want you to send out a bundle by the Stage Monday night. send us many ^{of} things I have sent for as you can. I send Maria's letter but I am afraid the paper will not be published here.

Lucia Weston.

Tell Harrod he will find his boots by calling at Doolittle's. The store was shut when Henry went to work there.

I send you black silk gown which I suppose was the one you wanted. Mind send out the pattern of the cloak Monday night by the stage and keep us acquainted with the Develoements. Write when you mean to come out. Mame says describe the make of the cloak as much as you can.

If you can find in Boston some flannel of this country ~~make~~ make get me enough for a Petcut and I intend to have it made speedily
